"It will be seen that the capitulation did not ognize at all a legal secession-a North or a outh, but one common Union. General Grant, evertheless, treated with a 'belligerent' power, not of this State or that, not even of the South, North, the East, or the West, but one composed f persons who had united to resist the execuny and all points. The decision of the Sueme Court simply affirms the fact of the exence of this power. It did not undertake to efine its territory or its civil jurisdiction and thority. It was declared to be a line of bayrets-the existence of a force which was designated 'a belligerent.' In destroying the belligerent we have wherever it was resisted or overthrown. Can it be said, in this view, that the uncondito 'his home and their remain undisturbed' is oid north of a line of latitude? What are the words of the convention which make a 'home' in Maryland and Kentucky impossible? Is it inswered that Maryland was no party to the elligerent power referred to by the Supreme

It was so reated by this and by every other government thad no territorial limits, no civil functions, no legal existence. It was a body of armed men gathered from all parts of the country Those who joined this body from Kentucky did not make a 'home' elsewhere when they took up arms against the Union. So General Grant and the late lamented President concluded, for the soldiers of 'the Northern Army of Virginia s they were designated, were sent, each to 'his nome,' in Maryland, Kentucky, Missouri, and

On being asked as to the nature of her message she declined to give it, but stated that it was from the Almighty, and that she must see the President, as she had come all the way from Illinois and was a neighbor of the late President Lincoln, and was ordered by God sixteen years ago to deliver her message, but until vesterday she had not been able to reach Washington. She was requested to wait outside, which she did and pent the interim in religious utterances and disjointed prayer. About four o'clock she qui etly retired, not having succeeded in obtaining

When we last referred to Colonel John S. Mosby he had just had, at Berryville, Clarke county, Va., an interview with General Chapman, while it was believed would result in the surrender of his battalion to the United States troops, on the terms accorded by General Granto General Lee. The negotiations, it will be remembered, were broken off by General Chapman's receiving marching orders, and it would seem they were never renewed, for we learn from one of Mosby's men, who has recently arrived in the city, that the noted Partisan Ranger has, like Davis, the great head and front of the rebellion, determined to fly to the Trans-Mississippi. He took leave of his men at Salem, Pauquier county, telling them that he was about to set out for Texas, but that they must disband and return to their homes; that he did not wish that they should accompany him, as by so doing they might put their necks into a halter. He rode off, accompanied by a small number of his old companions-in-arms. The organization at once disbanded. Many of the men and officers have gone to Winchester, and there have been paroled; some have come to this city, and others have returned to their homes. Most of the prominent officials and citizens of Richmond have taken the oath of allegiance to the United States Government, and there is a very general disposition among the mass of citizens, to follow their example. Among those who have subscribed to the oath are Joseph Mavo, Mayor of Richmond; Judge Wm H. Lyons, Judge of the Hustings Court; Littleton Tozewell, Prosecuting Attorney in the same court; James K. Kaskie, Recorder; Thomas U. Dudley, City Sergeant; Judge Moredith, of the Circuit Court of Richmond; P. H. Aylett, late Prosecuting Attorney of the Confederate States District Court; Joseph R. Anderson, proprietor of the Tredegar Iron Works; William H. Maciarland, President of the Farmers' Bank; and others less prominent. Physicians, lawyers, and professional men generally, with some few exceptions, have taken the oath and resumed the practice of their professions.

We have no data upon which to calculate the number of oaths administered, but the aggregate embraces a large percentage of the male resident population.

THE NEGROES AT CAMP NELSON. CAMP NELSON, Ky., April 29, 1865. To the Editors of the Louisville Journal:

To the Editors of the Louisville Journal:

In your issue of yesterday I notice a letter from a correspondent in Danville who writes under the nom de plume of Occasional. Early in life I was taught not to believe a thing until I had availed myself of every means to obtain indisputable evidence in its behalf. Seeing this letter yesterday, and, with him, being a "friend to the negro," I determined, as far as practicable, to ascertain such facts statistics, and data as would enable me to arrive at a just conclusion as to the verity of the statements contained in his letter.

Captain Hall is absent, and, were he here, I don't know that he would thank me for even noticing the absurdities of this Occasional man. First, Captain Hall is not a Quartermaster in Camp Nelson. Having hithfully performed his duties as such, to the fall satisfaction of the Government, he resigned his position six months since, and more than three months ago was appointed Superintendent of Colored Refugees at this Post. The very absurdity of "a rumor in the form of a message," said to have been received from Captair Hall, is too transparent to notice. Suffice it to say, I know no such report ever emanated from him or his "agents." Again. He says that there are hundreds and "agents."

Again. He says that there are hundreds and thousands who have beer received here and supported in idleness at the public expense. Connected with the Refugee Home there are about two hundred acres of land under garden cultivation, which they til as a part of their daily employment. They are not idle by any means. Seeking employment wherever it may be found, many partially support themselves; others clothe themselves with money earned by washing for soldiers and employes in camp. The larger boys are daily engaged improving the public grounds.

Then he complains that the offer of "the highest wages" proves no inducement to keep them at home. From an examination of the records, kept at the Home, in which the age, history, and reasons for leaving their masters are recorded. I find not a single instance registered where they were offered wages by their masters, and out of 2,050 now remaining at the Home I could not find one that, being interrogated as to whether they had ever been offered wages for their services, who would answer in the affirmative. And especially does this grievance come with bad grace from Danville, where so recently bulletins were posted through the town warning all free negroes to leave the place within a limited time, or pay $5 per day for the privilege of remaining where "such high wages" were offered.

Furthermore, as to the nortality, which your orrespondent would impose upon the commu-nity as extraordinary. Upon reference to the Second of the Dead I find his exaggerated num hereoff of the Dead I and his exaggerated num-bers to far exceed the actual mortality, received, as they may have been, from one who has been in command at Camp Nelson. Let us notice a few points of interest. There has for the last three months prevailed here are pepidemic in the form of measles, which has proved fatal to many children. Surely there is a wide difference between a disease "engendered" pasm, concerning his moral congation to manity, and trembles when he thinks of the adly demoralized condition of the people a he H. me. No one passes in or out without ass from the Local Superintendent, and these passes are so regulated that good order alway or evails. On each Sabbath there is preaching prevails. On each Sabbath there is preaching, morning and evening, in the capacious dininghall, by the Chaplain, and during the week prayer-meetings are held in the various halls or cottages, conducted by some person, generally one of their own color. Could you hear their prayers and songs, see them tilling their little gardens, and planting flowers and shrubbery in front of their cottages (of which there are now about one hundred), you would not be at an atfarmed but that their moral condition was quite as good as when they were with their masters. Finally, having almost exhausted his theme, he happens to bethink himself that there are thousands of "wives and children of white soldiers suffering in want and in poverty all over the land to whom no add is given." It is a poor argument because one class is neglected and the same care is extended, and the same rations issued.

Surely the Legislature will act upon the sagacious suggestion of your correspondent, and I presume Major-General Palmer is very gratefai (though he may not publicly acknowledge it) to the gentleman from Dauville for the very valuable information he has given him, and will undoubtedly willingly accede to the "interposition" so earnestly invoked.

"Slavery is twice dead and plucked up by the roots." True, very true! I am glad it comes so generously from the pen of a Kentuckian. With lightning speed my mind goes back to a scene in Congress in 1824, when Kentucky's adored, dead Harry Clay, stood in the midst of a throng of our country's representatives and State he so nobly represented. We thus time is not distant when it shall no long be said of any Kentuckian, "Ephraim i and to his idols; let him alone."

with note that his proceduration reviving trade is not addressed alone to the loval people of the South, but includes the "well disposed" in its privileges, and that, too, without compelling them to take the much-abused and often broker cath of allegiance. The South, in so far at trade is concerned, could ask no more than this, for the door of commerce is open as wholly and as freely to all the people as if such a thing as war had not been known. Whether they will avail themselves of the offer remains to be seen, but they must be rebellious, indeed, if they allow so handsome a privilege to remain a dead letter with them. I understand, upon authority which I cannot doubt, that term: equally generous to those offered to and accepted by Lee and Johnston, will be shortly offered to the whole Southern people—a few of their leaders in the rebellion alone excepted. In other words there will be a general amnesty tendered, and a disposition evinced to make the situation for our "wayward sisters" as pleasant as possible.

The radical element have got an inkling of the proley of the President, and declare that its doption will end in the retention of slavery at the South, thus defeating, as they believe, the reat object for which the war, during the pass our years, has been fought, and leaving the difference of contention" still to be attacked and gnawed around by the opposing factions Put let those beware who attempt to oppose policy of President Johnson. Mr. Linc as been credited with firmness, but in his sessor's little finger there will be more of the sessor's little finger there will be more of the sessor's little finger there.

The following is General Johnston's farewell order:

Headquarters Army of the Tennessee, near Creensboro, N. C., May 2.—General Orders, No. 22.—Comrades, in terminating our official relations I earnestly exhort you to observe faithfully the terms of pacification agreed upon, and discharge the obligations of good and peaceful citizens at your homes as well as you have performed the duties of soldiers in the field.

By such a course you will best secure the interests of your families and kindred, and restore tranquility to the country. You will return to your homes with the admiration of our peoply, won by the courage and noble devotion you have employed in this long war.

I shall always remember with pride the loyal support and generous confidence you have given me. I now part with you with deep recret, and bid you farewell with feelings of cordial friendship and earnest wishes that you may have hereafter all the prosperity and happiness to be found in the world.

The Times' Washington special says: It ought to be understood that the recent proclamation offering a reward for the appresent of Jeff Davis, as one of the parties implicated in the assassination of Mr. Lincoln, was not issued by President Johnson as his individual actor merely upon his own opinion.

As to the guilt of Davis, it was issued in pursuance of the decision of the proper legal authority. It was at first unanimously decided in Cabinet meeting that all parties in any way connected with the conspiracy should be tried by military tribunal, and not by civil courts.

All the testimony relating to the matter was that placed officially in the hands of Judge Advocate General Holt, for Holt was examined very carefully and made a written report to the Secretary of War, giving it as his official opinion that the evidence proved Davis to have been connected with the inception and execution of the plot.

It was upon this official report that the proclamation was based. It is not to be supposed that any direct and personal action in the matter can be traced to Davis, but it will be proved that the conspiracy was formed, and prosecuted with his knowledge.

It appears that letters addressed to civilians in Richmond are detained in Washington, and a large number has accumulated there.

The Herald's correspondent gives further details of the surrender of Johnston. Over 30,000 men were surrendered. A large number of them did not wait for their parole but started off as soon as they learned of the capitulation, and are now engaged in pillaging and robbing the destitute people.

We have been repeatedly asked to give some information in relation to the amount of cotton on hand at the South. The difficulty in forming an approximate estimate has arisen mainly from the impossibility of ascertaining to what extent the actual yield, since the war began, has been shipped in evasion of the blockade. The Texas cotton, and nearly all produced west of the Mississippi, has been passing, as fast it could be hauled on wagons, to the sea-board by Mexican ports. A considerable portion of Louisiana and Tennessee has been cleaned. Notwith-standing the high prices here and abroad, there has been very little inducement to Southern planters to cultivate this crop. It has been abasing in the price here and abroad, there has been very little inducement to Southern planters to cultivate this crop. It has been abagging to prepare the cotton for market after it was picked, or to transport it to any place of sale, and the local authorities have used every means in their power to compel the land owners in their power to compel the land owners it to raise cereals in place of the great staple, extend our researches at the South, and we have been only to the Kentucky side.

The guerillas were all, save one, dressed in citizens' cothes, and were remarkably villainous in bearing and action. One of the party they addressed as Lieutenant and another as Captain. They carried no arms but revolvers, and these they were constantly flourishing around in the most threatening manner.

It is no longer to conquer, to wear out, and to overthrow, but to win, to unite, and to restore. The worst part of the difficulty consists in the national deficits, which themselves caused a rupture which war was too certain to aggravate, and which triumph is not apt at once to remove. We know not where to look for that happy mixture of firmness, sagacity, tenderness, and knowledge of mankind which is to heal the terrible wounds of this war and restore love between the men who have suffered and infileted much frightful injuries. Our only hope is that the occasion will call into prominence men as well qualided for the work of peace as names unknown to fame have become glorious in this war. Sluce warriots have emerged as it were from the soil, so also a new race of wise and readifications.

FMANCIPATION IN THE OLD DOMINION—Now that slavery is practically abolished in Virginia, reflecting men are considering the probable efe who never owned slaves, and were but little bove them in intelligence and literary acquirewith as much zea as those who were theresee in the perpetuation of the "peculiar institution."

We believe that thousands of Virginia agriculturists, who formerly owned slaves, will now admit that had they calmly studied their own interests and rejected the sophistry of designing acmit that had they calmly studied their own interests and rejected the sophistry of designing politicians, they would long since have gotten rid of so unprofitable a system of labor. Upon any estate where it has been necessary to have the labor of a specified number of field-hands, it was invariably the case that there has been a large number of women and children, consumers, and the children, in most cases, eating as much as the adults. Men clung to the idea, that though children might consume a good deal of food, they were desirable property, inasmuch as in the event of pecuniary difficulties they could convert them into cash, and use the proceeds in relieving themselves from insolvency or loss of credit. When the calculation is made, however, of the value of the food alone consumed, to say nothing of clothing, medicines, etc., it will be found that every negro raised on a farm has "eaten his head off."

The system of hired labor, now inevitable in Virginia, will certainly promote the agricultural interests of the State. No longer burdened with so many unprofitable, non-producing consumes as a second of a sur has ease the say and has a sur labore, a spirit The Hibernian, from Liverpool the 27th, via Londonderry the 28th, arrived off this point this morning.

The news of the Nova Scotia of the assassination of President Lincoln and Secretary Seward was published throughout England on the 26th ult., creating profound sensation.

The strongest feelings of sympathy and indignation are universally expressed. There was so many unprofitable, non-producing consu-mers, a man may select his own labor; a spirit so many unprontable, non-producing consumers, a man may select his own labor; a spirit of competition once excited among the laborers it becomes cheaper, and when it becomes to be realized that to live it is necessary to work, no compulsory measure will have to be employed by the hirers.

The effect of emancipation upon the slaves is a collateral question which we do not propose to consider at present. It will doubtless lead, in many instances, to great suffering, and to the endurance of many privations by negroes who have heretofore been kindly cared for. With no watchful and indulgent master or mistress to minister to every want, and with no innate energy of character, these poor wretches will never realize in emancipation all the blessings they have been led to expect. Nor, if they willingly work, can any prediction be made now as to the results of their competition with white labor. The two races become antagonistic, or they may work harmonlously together. bloody and unnatural dramas, infused with new life and energy, will take her proper place among her sisters of the Great Republic. GUERILLAS NEAR NORTH BEND-THE OHIO
AND MISSIESPIFT TRAIN ATTACKED—TASSEN.
GERS AND ADAMS EXPIRES SAFE ROBBED.
Our city yesterday morning was thrown into a state of excitement by the announcement that during Friday night a party of guerillas from Kentucky had crossed the Ohio river and made a raid on the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad near North Bend.

The regular 8 P. M. express train on the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad left the depot in this city at the usual nour, bound for St. Louis. It was composed of four passenger coaches, a baggage car, and the Adams Express car. The train was heavily loaded with passengers, quite a number of them being ladies. About seventeen miles and a half from Cincinnati, and between the stations known as Gravel Pit and North Bend, the locomotive ran from the track, and tipped over on one side, the cars following in a promiscuous smash up. The Adams Express car and the baggage car were capsized with the ergine, and both badly damaged. The first passenger coach stove through the end of the baggage car, producing considerable havoc.
The remainder of the train was not severely injured and kept fife track. The first shock of the passengers the idea that it was an ordinary railroad accident, but the volley of firearms and the shouts outside, which followed immediately after, undeceived them, and the nature and cause of the mishap became palpably evident when two desperadoes made their appearance at each car, and, backed by two more who kept guard outside, commenced pillaging the passengers.

Subsequent developments have revealed the plan pursued by the guerillas in capturing the train, and show that considerable skill was minated in such great crime, be forgiven and stored to His favor and to peace and unity

ALFRED GAITHER, Superintendent. [For the Louisville Journal.] THE WOULD-BE CONVENTION IN THE SECOND DISTRICT.

OWENSBORO, KY., May 4, 1865.

OWENSORO, KY., May 4, 1865.

Yesterday was the day fixed for the assembling of a convention in Owensboro, to nominate a candidate for the support of those who are opposed to the "amendment" in this district in other words an attempt to fuse and coalesce the pro-slavery Union men and the secessionists of the district. The attempt, however, was a failure, and the failure is rather creditable than otherwise to those concerned.

Some dozen gentlemen from three counties were in attendance, who of course could not call themselves a convention and make a nomination for the district. But a consultation was held to determine what was best to be done. The "old line" secesh element very emphatically demurred, showing that they had not lost all consistency and virtue. Some quite plain, and, it is said, not very elegant expressions were exchanged, when they agreed to disagree and broke up, the Union men very plainly averring that if the secesh wanted any such man as Powell, Bunch, or McHenry, they would go for Yeaman, and the secesh as plainly molicated that if they could not get a straightout, old-fashioned Locofoco, and were required to make the fight for a war Unionist on the lest and demolished negro, they would go for Yeaman. Now, all this is easily understood. There are a tew Unionists in the District who, admitting that slavery is gone and that a fight for it is useless, yet hope to defeat Mr. Yeaman for being just a little in advance of them on this great question, and are yet to truthful to go for an old politiand that a fight for it is useless, yet hope to defeat Mr. Yesman for being just a little in advance of them on this great question, and are yet too truthful to go for an old political enemy, who was trying to destroy the Government when they were standing up for it. And intelligent rebels, seeing slavery is hopelessly gone, while they will readily unite with any body who will merge with them to build up the old Democratic party, will not hand over the leaves and fishes and leadership to Unionists who seem to hold off from the Amendment only for a temporary political success.

Our prospects are bright; matters look well. The ten lency is in the right direction and Judge Yeaman will be returned by a large majority.

Respectfully.

TUESDAY, MAY 9, 1865. THE AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION .- We has called from our citizens many expres understand that many persons in the interior of praise and agreeable surprise. Some tim of the State are opposing the adoption of the ago, in view of the speedy termination of the dment prohibiting slavery upon the ground war and the probable moral and social result that it conters power upon Congress to make of a sudden reflux of hundreds of thousands citizens and voters of negroes. Persons who troops upon the loyal States, we expressed th ay this cannot have read the amendment, we c nviction that they would quietly return to the feel quite sure. There is no such clause in it homes, and, with comparatively few exception or anything that looks like it or that implies rapidly become valuable citizens again. The it directly or indirectly. We have already pub- soundness of the conviction then expressed by lished the amendment, but for the information us is now being fully demonstrated, thus fu of those who have got this absurd idea into nishing the most cheering comment upon the their heads we give it again verbation. 2. Congress shall have pawer to enforce

This is all of it. It is simply prohibitory. It declares what shall not be. It establishes a egative. When the second section asserts that Congress shall have the power to enforce the icle, what is it that it is given authority to do? Why manifestly and clearly to enforce the first section, which is, as before stated, a prohibition. Congress shall have power to enforce the prohibition, and nothing else. There is not the least intimation that the Congress is to do European expressions relative to American v other thing, nor can any such inference be affairs. The public journals of England and drawn from the premises without a gross violan of the plainest principles of interpretation and of logic. The pretence that there is, is and acknowledge the impossibility of establishmere gratuitous assumption, without a particle | ing a Southern Confederacy. No more doubt nce to support it. Citizenship is a to tally different matter. There is no reference to American Union. The profoundest sorrow it in this amendment whatever, and none whatwer was intended. But it may be said, indeed it has been said in effect already, that Congress, though no power is conferred upon it by the amendment for the urpose, will arrogate to itself such power, and lare the negroes that may be freed in virtue the adoption of the instrument by threefourths of the States of the Union citiand of free speech, and people are at A man may say that this, that, or the other thing is going to happen, and he may be Il take place because he says so. It may be his honest opinion, but he may be mistaken. We may assume, if we please, that Congress will sly violate the Constitution, obliterate State aws, and destroy our liberties. Does the assumption prove this? If Congress pass an unstitutional law, there is a remedy at hand, and one expressly provided, to meet such an exigency. That remedy is the Supreme Court. But the Court may prove corrupt or recreant Certainly; and an earthquake may sink the apital, or the people may all take it into their heads to go mad together and obliterate all rights "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness" on he part of each other! Clearly, there is no way of refuting such sort of argument as this, if it may called argument at all. If Congress violate the fundamental law of the land, the Supreme Court will most likely so decide; and if its members and the Executive persist in wrong doing, the people-unless they go crazy in the mean--will turn the whole of them out at the rext election and put in others in their places who will act differently. That's our view of the remedy in such a case. There is no need of secession or revolution in such an emergency. The men who framed the Constitu were not such dolts as to leave the people no redress but a resort to brute force under such circumstances. If they had been, the government they created with so much toil and blood and bequeathed as a precious inheritance to their posterity would have been no better than an ordinary monarchy, and would have been shattered to fragments long ago. When the slaves of Kentucky are set free by virtue of the Amended Constitution-as they rtainly will be-the question whether they shall become citizens and voters will depend wholly upon the action of the State itself sub equently. If it be her good will and pleasure to make them such, they will become such; if ot, not. That's the whole question in a nutshell on the subject. It's so plain that nobody, as it seems to us, can help understanding i who does not wish to misunderstand it.

But here is another supposition: Suppose we ratify this amendment; may not Congress at some future day propose another amendmen making all negroes throughout the country citizens and voters? Well, now, we cannot decide this. We are not prophets, or the sons of prophets, and don't know what may happen in the dim future. Nothing will occur, we trust, to vex posterity worse than what has already taken place to curse us; and, in order that there may not, we want to clear away one of the elements of disturbance, now that our hands are in, and be done with it forever. We are heartily sick of it, and want to hear the last of it.

If an amendment, such as the one suggested should be made in either of the modes pointed out by the Constitution, that is, if Congress, upon the application of two-thirds of the Legislatures of the several States, should call a convention for the purpose, or if two-thirds of both Houses should propose such an amendment, and, in either case, it should be ratified y three fourths of the several States composing the Federal Union at the time, it would be as birding upon the whole of the said States as any other article of the Constitution. There is no escape from the proposition. The only limi-Constitution provides has reference to the slave trade, which was not to terminate before the ear 1808, and to the equal suffrage in the Senate of all the States unless any State should oluntarily surrender such equality. How the failure to adopt the present amendment-supposing for the sake of argument that it should fail-is going to prevent Congress from passing other amendments, absurd or otherwise, hereafter, or their ratification, is more than we can see, and we guess it is more than any body can see. We know-any man who is not thoroughly blinded by his pre udices must know-that the fiat against slavers has gone forth. Better yield with a good grace to what cannot be prevented. It is already useless and a nuisance in the State. Better abate nuisances. Revolutions, recollect, never TURBED.-In an article last week we com pared the opposition to slavery in this country to the avalanche of the Alps, and the attempt to stop that opposition to an old man trying to arrest the course of the avalanche with his cane. This has greatly shocked a contempora ry. Indeed, it seems to have seriously disturbed its whole nervous system. It is in great pain. Its agony is fearful to behold. evidently sees the avalanche coming, and is in mortal dread of being overwhelmed and crushed to death by it. We sincerely commiserate its unhappy condition. The only reme dy we can suggest at the present writing is for it to take to its heels and run for dear life. Vigorous exercise is excellent; and, besides the profuse perspiration it must produce, the feeling of relief which distance from the scene of dan ger will inevitably bring our contemporary, will be, we cannot doubt, most soothing and grateful, as well as strengthering. If it is so impletely paralyzed, "transfixed to the spot," that it cannot move, we promise to do our best by way of assistance. Being naturally philanthropic, we always feel for the afflicted.

The idea has generally prevailed that the ROBERT L. Parties who have been through Georgia as south as the Etowah river, represent that aly appalling. What few inhabitants remain e are almost starved to death, and for want of animals it is impossible for any of them to attempt to raise any crops.

It has been asserted that out of seven red rebel officers, in durance at Fort Delaware, all have taken the oath of allegiance except thirteen. Such a wholesale conversion as favor of the admirable influence of Fort Dela-this is very remarkable, and speaks volumes in favor of the admirable influence of Fort Delasware and its excellent commander, General Schoppf.

The St. Louis Dispatch says the farmers of the Interior counties of Missouri are making preparations for the season's work, with a hopeful spirit, and with a sense of security they have not enjoyed for years past. In the southwest and in the western border counties they are putting in a large crop.

Transfers.—Yesterday, five hundred and fifty-three men were transferred to Nashville, one hundred and thirty-three to Washington City, three to Baltimore, Md., twenty-four to Columbus, O., five to Cheinnati, O., and twenty-one to Philadelphia, Pa.

Transfers.—Yesterday morning forty-six deserters from the late rebel army arrived at the Scholley of the Charles and the United States, on the West and not with Canada East, Quite a number of the M. P. P.'s as if a double-barrelled gun had gone off and a large flock of geese. They don't know what to do now. The scheme has already cost Canada about $500,000, and to have New Brunswick kick it all over is about as much as they can stand. They consider it owing to Yankee influence—trade interests between the maritime provinces and the United States, but of that we know not "yee or may." The idea they now have is, to send some M. P. P.'s to England and have her "coefficient from the late rebel army arrived at the Military Prison in this city from Nashville, and were furnished transportation to points north of the Ohio river.

The Juage Advocate said he had no objections of the right of the paper; it was therefore filled. Mr. Crain, counsel for the defence, demurred against the specifications, saying that no particular house was named therein which the accused is charged with having the men. He, however, deferred presenting the point at the present time. The accused then offered as widence General Orders No. 57 of the War Department of the war Depart The Judge Advocate said he had avidence General Orders No. 57 of the war be-partment giving transportation to rebels and others to their homes. Mr. Harris stated that his witnesses had not arrived, but that it wa important they should be here. A distinguished army officer mentioned this morning as a fact that there is now telegraph communication between Macon, Ga, and Washington, a portion of the line extending through Georgia, where we have no troops. He said the same wires which were but recently sent there by the rebels are now employed in transmitting the President's prociamation offering a reward for the arrest of Davis and others. The Navy Department continues to receive and accept resignations of volunteer officers. Raliroad speculation is strong at the stock exchange, and the prices better, with a moderate demand for stocks. The bears opened by offering large lots of Erie, but without shaking the strength of the market; 4,500 shares were readily taken in three lots. This gave considence to the market. Miscellaneous stocks better. Bonds and State stocks dull. The European news did not excite any depressing effect on the market.

better. Bonds and State stocks dull. The European news did not excite any depressing effect on the market.

Geid was heavy at noon, and the prices fell to 139½ at the close, a decline of 4 per cent from the highest point of the day. There was very little speculation in the gold-room, and the heavy fall in 5.20s on the other side failed to stimulate any rise in the premium. The market is abundantly supplied with funds; the general ratio is 5 per cent. Some banks and private bankers are buying 7.30s in preference to loaning their money at the present rates. Foreign exchange is dull. There is considerable excitement in petroleum stocks. The prices are higher except in United States.

The following are the prices: Buck Farm 145, Consolidate 200, Cherry Run 54, Excelsior 590, Empire 275, Tack 190, Ocean 249, Rynd Farm 300, United States 250, German 54, Northern Light 440, Webster 105.

It was rumored that Jeff Davis has arranged for the iron-clad Stopewall to enter one of the numerous inlets on the Atlantic coast to carry him to a place of safety.

The Times' Washington special says: A number of leading clinens in New York, among tem Moses Taylor, A. Belmont, T. Weed, and others, made up a purse of $1,600 for the soldier Robinson, acting nurse, who saved the life of Secretary Seward.

The Times' Raleigh special says: Union meetings are held throughout the State. In instances they have been large. Meetings in Castile, Greer, and Wayne counties have spoken that there can be no peace without Union, and that they will aid the United States in the restoration of law and order throughout North Carolina.

mining Journal says as follows relative to the petroleum business at present:

There is much activity at the wells, but the production is probably not more than half the yield of 1863, in proportion to the number of wells worked. We no longer hear of "big strikes." The era of large flowing wells in the Venango region seems to have passed away. The present daily yield of the Venango region is estimated at 5,000 barrels. Nevertheless an immense capital is being invested. Over 5,000 wells are in course of digging or contracted for. These wells will cost an average of $8,000, which will involve an outlay of $440,000,000 But it is not likely that the market will receive any considerable additional supply from this source, under three months. The price of labor and fuel continues high at the wells, $1 to $1.25 being paid for coal. It is evident that there is to be no excessive supply, which warrants the expectation generally held by oil dealers that the price of crude must advance. The receipts of crude at Pittsburg, by river and rail, from the 10th to the 25th inst. inclusively, were $0.91 barrels, to which must be ac d 7.687 barrels, recovered from the flood; total, 38 600 barrels, Receipts from January 1, 1865, 34,510; total, 83,415 barrels.

THE CHICAGO CONSPIRACY -Two rebel of

The Chicago Constract —Two rebel officers, Captain Rere, of the 7th Keatucky, and Captain Ayre, 10th Kentucky, who were prisoners at Camp Douglas last fall, and who were exchanged, recently became weary of the rebellion, and, passing through our lines, "took the oath." They came out of Dixie by way of the Big Sandy Valley. Coming within the scope of the circulation of Northern news, they learned that the trial of the Chicago conspirators had been concluded, and made some hours very interesting to their travelling companions by detailing the circumstances of the plot to release the rebels at Camp Douglas, as they passed under the observation of insiders. They confirmed fully the fact that there was a conspiracy, that the rebel prisoners knew it, and were ready to do their part. If the plot had not been discovered in time, the prisoners would unquestionably have been released, and have captured, and, perhaps, destroyed the city of Chicago. There were enough of them to form a considerable army, and they expected reinforcements from the class of sympathizers who were engaged to turn them loose. The gentlement o whom the rebel officers spoke so frankly are known to us, and are reliable and responsible.—Cincinnati Commercial.

tarian strife, says the New York Journal of play of a more bitter animosity than was exhibited in the bloody riots last fall in the Irish city of Belfast. The burning of an effigy of O'Connell, in which 4,000 persons participated, was the first exasperating act, followed by the struction of a Romish female penitentiary For several successive nights these outrages from the constabulary force, till at length the Romanists retaliated by assailing a Protestant tional school in which more than four hundred pupils were gathered. Thus women and ignoble contest. For some days subsequent regular engagements with firearms took place in the streets, several persons being killed or wounded. The whole tragedy culminated in an extraordinary scene attending the burial of a Protestant who had fallen before a volley fired at a mob while in violent resistance. As if in defiance, the body was escorted through that part of the city chiefly inhabited by Romanists, two or three thousand persons in procession, accompanied by a troop of hussars. There were also present members of the constabulary force who joined in the line of march, some of rom time to time "by way of bravado," These in substance, are the statements of commiswhose report is now published. The evidence is conclusive that the public authorities of Belfast, even if they did not encourage the rioters, certainly failed to take prompt and efficient measures for the preservation of the peace. The recommendations of the commission designed to prevent a repetition of these outrages, is that a detachment of Irish constabulary shall be stationed in Belfast, under the control of a commissioner appointed by the authority. The principal ringleaders in the acts referred to have already been brought to Belfast is a prosperous city of 140,000 intants. The preponderance of the latter afforded the best opportunity for recommending faith, but the position seems to have sadly misimproved. Sectarian hate has seldom been manifested in ways more intolerant, and in the remedial measures since proposed we see nothing calculated to give assurance for the future or to allay the revengeful spirit more than ever liable to break forth with the first provocation. The English Government does not manage riots any more skilfully than it did centuries ago.

GUERILLAS ON THE OHIO AND MISSISSIPP RAILBOAD-A TRAIN ROBBED .- The Cairo Express train on the Ohio and Mississippi railroad left Cincinnati on Friday night at 8 o'clock, with a full load of passengers. At about Bend, and certainly not twenty miles from Cincinnati, the engineer discovered obstruction on the track, and, of course, stopped the train. A strong gang of guerillas immediately surrounded the train, and prevented its farther progress. They then went through the various cars, and robbed the passengers of their mone and valuables, making their escape with the booty. The Cincinnati Commercial is under the impression that these rascals are a part of the Boone county (Kentucky) gang, who have not been very demonstrative of late. The facts of the capture of the train and robbing of the passengers were telegraphed to Superintendent Lewis on Friday night as soon as the officers of the train could get back to a telegraph station. There is no word as yet as to the train having been destroyed. Probably the guerillas recrossed the river as soon as they had procured all the plunder they could lay their hands on. This renewed audacity will certainly call forth vigorous efforts for their complete suppression, on the part of General Palmer.

EXTRAORDINARY JUVENILE RASCALITY -For several days past a gang of juveniles-mostly newsboys-have been robbing the postoffice at Cincinnati, of letters in the following manner They would stuff a newspaper covered with paste into the inclined side of the outside letterbox, on Fourth street, wait in the vicinity until several letters had been deposited, draw forth the paper with its intercepted letters, and depart with their plunder, giving place to a other gang of their companions in the affair, who would go through with the same opera tion. They had thus stolen over a hundred let ters, many of which contained sums of money, some as high as fifty dollars. The affair was brought to light by a policeman who overheard two of the boys quarrelling as to the number they had stolen. Seven of the young candis for the House of Refuge were arrested. The oldest is not quite fourteen.

A gang of desperadoes are depredating in the neighborhood of Cloverdale and Cataract, Putnam county, Indiana, and to such an extent have their outrages been carried that the military authorities have been invoked to aid in ridding that county of their presence. Three or four deserters, and a man convicted of the murder of an old man and his wife, and who lately escaped from the penitentiary, to which he had been sentenced for life, are the leaders of the gang. They have lately attempted the murder of several citizens. Owen Sullivan, a soldier of the 21st Kentucky, who was blasphemous enough to express joy at the assassination of our late loved President, was sentenced by court-martial in Nashville to be dishonorably discharged the service, to have his head shaved, to be drummed through the camp, and to be imprisoned one year. The head shaving was remitted, but the blasphemer will undoubtedly undergo the rest of a most righteous sentence.

Gen. Stoneman has intrusted to Colonel . Pa sons, of the 9th Tennessee cavalry, the duty of ridding all that portion of East Tennessee and Southwestern Virginia lying between the Holston river on the east, and the Cumberland Mountains on the west, of guerillas and other bands of outlaws. He instructs the Colonel as follows: "Give them to understand that no false mercy will be shown them, and no prisoners taken, and that every man found in arms, under whatever pretence, and acting without authority from Federal officers or the constituted authorities of the State of Tennessee, will be treated as a public enemy and outlaw, and killed like a mad dog by any one who f the "Round Table," an able literary weekly

Decide!" said Screech, the gentleman who which was for a short time published in New York city, announces his purpose to establish in that city a critical weekly journal to be devoted to literature, art, science, and national affairs. We cordially commend the enterprise and wish Mr. Sweetser abundant success. "WILL NOT SURRENDER."-The rebel chief,

Col. Meade, sent word to Gen. Granger, in reply to General Thomas's order, that he would not surrender. Meade has about 150 men under him, and is operating in the vicinity of Paint Rock. A large force of Federal cavalry have been sent out to "slightly coerce" the inhuman outlaw.

Three persons came in voluntarily and ook the cath of allegiance yesterday-J. W. Harris, a rebel deserter, and two citizens, Wm. E. Hubbard, of Bullitt county, and Shelbourne Watts, of Spencer county.

"Music, when soft voices die,
Vibrates in the memory;
Odors, when seet violets sicken, Live within the sense they quicken," MACAULAY'S DESCRIPTION OF THE PURITANS.

We take the following brilliant and life-like picture from the first volume of Macaulay's History of England: They mistook their own vindictive feelings or emotions of piety; encouraged in them-elves, by reading and meditation, a disposition o brood over their wrongs, and, when they and worked themselves up into hating their as worked themselves up into hating their nemies, imagined they were hating only the benies of Heaven. In the New Testament here was little, indeed, which, even perverted to the most disingenuous exposition, could em to countenance the indulgence of malevoby the most disingenuous exposition, could seem to countenance the indulgence of malevotaline passions. But the Old Testament contained the history of a race selected by Go4 to be withceses of his unity and ministers of his vengeance, and specially commanded by him to do many things which, if done without his special command, would have been atrocious crimes. In such a history it was not difficult for fierce and gloomy spirits to find much that might be distorted to suit their wishes. The extreme Paritans, therefore, began to feel for the Old Testament a preference which, perhaps, they did not distinctly avow even to themselves, but which showed itselt in all their sentiments and habits. They paid to the Hebrew language a respect which they refused to that tongue in which the discourses of Jesus and the epistle of Paul have come down to us. Taey baptized their children by the names, not of Christian spirits, but of Hebrew naturaghs and warriors.

In defiance of the express and reiterated declarations of Luther and Calvin, they turned the weekly festival by which the church had, from the primitive times, commemorated the resur-rection of her Lord, into a Jewish Sabbath.

weekly festival by which the church had, from the primitive times, commemorated the resurrection of her Lord, into a Jewish Sabbath.
They sought for principles of jurispradence in the Mosaic law, and for precedents to guide their ordinary conduct in the books of Judges and Kings. Their thoughts and discourses ran much on acts which were assuredly not recorded as examples for our imitation. The prophet who hewed in pieces a captive king; the rebel General who gave the blood of a queen to the coge; the matron who, in defiance of plighted faith, and of the laws of Eastern hospitality, drove the n-il into the brain of the fugitive ally who had just fed at her board, and who was sleeping under the shadow of her tent—were proposed as models of Christian suffering uncer the tyranny of princess and prelates Morals and manners were subjected to a code resembling that of a synagogue, fwhen the synagogue was in its worst state. The dress, the Reportment, the language, the studies, the amnsements of the rigid sect were regulated on principles resembling those of the Pharisees, who, proud of their washed hands and broad philacteries, taunted the Redeemer as a Sabbath-breaker and a wine-biober. It was a sin to hang garlands on a May-pole, to drink a friend's health, to fly a hawk, to hunt a stag, to play at chees, to wear love-locks, to put starch into a ruff, to touch the virginals, to read the Falry Queen. Rules such as these—rules which would have appeared insupportable to the free and joyous spirit of Luther, and contemptible to the serene and philosophical inteliect of Zuingle, threw over all life a more than monastic gloom. The learning and eloquence by which the great Reformers had been eminexity distinguished, and to which they had been, in no small measure, indebted for their success, were regarded by the new school of Protestants with suspicion, if not aversion.
Some precisions secupied about teaching the Latin grammar because the names of Mars, Bacchus, and Apollo occurred in it. The fine arts were all

try, and applied to the common concerns of English lif-, were the most striking peculiaritie of this cant, which moved, not without cause the derision both of prelatists and libertines.

BY JOHN HAY, My dear wife sits beside the fire, with folded hands and dreaming eyes. Watching the restless flames sapire, And wrapped in thrilling memories. I mark the fiful fire ight flag Its warm carresses on her brow.

Into the bosom's perfect swell.

The checks' faint flush the lips' red glow,
The gracious charms her beauty wears,
Fill my fond eyes with tender toars,
As in the days of long ago.

Days long ago, when in her eyes
The only heaven I cared for lay,
When from our thoughtless Paradise
All care and toli dwelt far away;
When hepe in wasward fancies throve
And rioted in secret sweets, Beguilted by Passion's dear deceits—
The mysteries of maiden love.

One year had passed since first my sight Wass giaddened by her girlish charms, When on a rapturous summer night I clasped her in possessing arms. And now three years have rolled away And left such blessings as their dower! I owe her threefold at this hour The love that lit our wedding day.

For now, vague-hovering o'er her form, My fancy views, by love refued, A warmer and a dearer charm. By wedlock's mystic hands entwined; A go'der coil of wifely cares. That years have forged the loving loy. That guards the curly-headed boy, Asiecp an hour ago upstairs.

A fair young mother, pure as fair, A matron heart and virgin soul— The flickering light that crowns her hair Seems like a saintly sureose! A tender sense upon me falls That joy unmerited is mine, And, in this pleasant twilight shine, My perfect bliss,myself appalis. Come back, my darlingl strayed so far Lite the resims of fantasy— Let thy dear face shine like a star In love light beaming over me; My melting soul is jedious sweet. THE GREEK AMBASSADOR.

A BALL-ROOM SCENE AT TRANSMARINA. have never seen your new uniform, and there will not be the least difficulty in persuading them that you are the diplomatic representative of the new Hellenic monarchy. Will you play the part for one night only? Say yes, and we shall have such a lark as never was seen."

This speech was addressed to me in a ball-toom in the district colony of Transmarina, the sarticular locality of which can be found in any fazetteer. The glare of chandeliers lighted up aces a shade more tawny, perhaps, than are "I say, Trevyllian, such fun!-the peo noces a shade more tawny, perhaps, than are sually seen in the British Isles; but there was o lack of beauty, and the soft crushing of infolines and the hum of conversation, partly rowned by the tuning of fiddles and other innts, formed in my young ears a delight-ude to the coming fray.

'I shall be delighted, my dear fellow,'' said, when I had heard him to the end; 'but I an't speak a word of Greek. At school, like tonaparte in Russia, as Brummel remarked, I was stopped by the elements.''

'No metter—talk French' by the elements."

"Just as good—come along. Allow me, Sir Piper Timkins, to present you his Excellency Count Polu-phois-boi-o Thalasses, Ambassa-lor from his Majesty the King of the Greeks

The rest was inaudible; but Sir Piper, bowing lome, we'll march down the room; the band cone, we it march down the room; the oand is playing 'See the Conquering Hero,' which suits exactly, and Whymper and Topham are bearing down before us, announcing, in a loud whisper, your exalted title and dignity."

As we proceeded through the crowded but spacious saloon, I could perceive that I excited sensation in my new uniform (strictly accordeither side at my approach, a lane was formed for me to pass through, and eyes, eye-glasses, and spectacles scrutioized me in the most inter-esting manner. To say the truth, I looked the

Sir, Piper. who was a short, fat man, with a very pale but rather pimply face, came up biding the end of his straw-colored kid-gloves, and asked in a very nervous tone, if "I would condescend to do him the honor to be his vis-a vis in a set."

I bowed acquiesence, and Sir Piper had not ingratiated himself with the young ladies of Transmarina—the consequence of which was that he failed to produce the article he wanted in the specified time, and, indeed, came up during the middle of the second figure, in a great state of excitement, for Screech had told him that his Excellency was very angry indeed. He made a lengthened apology. I had provided myself in his absence, and so accepted his explanation. He again asked for the honor of dancing in my set; and after a little hesitation, dancing in my set; and after a little hesitation, I agreed to allow him to do so. But Sir Piper a I agreed to anow him to do so. But sir riper a second time failed to procure a partner. I waited for him, and lost the dance purposely. He found me sitting on the sofa, frowning augrily. He made an abject apology. After listening in silence for some time, I told him he had behaved most improperly, and that only for his assertion that he could get no young lady to dance with him, I should have treated the matter as a direct and premeditated insult to his specially the king of the Greeks.

Would any one believe his next step? It was a other than to slide himself on to the sofa side me, and after a short preface, to ask for side me, and after a short pretace, to an place in the Legation!
"Pray, sare, can you talkee Greek?"
"No, your Excellency; but I could learn."

"What foreign lankwidge do you know?"

have disappointed him in a dance, done him out of another, and you have had the astounding effrontery to petition for a post in the Legation, when you cannot speak a word of any foreign language. Sir Piper! Sir Piper! you have behaved most improperly—you have not only insulied his Excellency Count Polupholoisholo Thalasses, but the whole Greek nation! And what will be the consequence, considering the fiery nature of the Helienic race, and that of his Excellency the ambassador in particular, it is impossible to foresee; but that they must have a serious bearing against yourself, you must rest perfectly assured.

Cold perspiration broke from Sir Piper's brow; he soug'it the refreshment room to particular of some stimulant, and to consider the possibility of making a sudden and secret retreat from the bal-room by a circuitous route. Screech, suspecting his design, told him that his Excellency 'wished to see him at the conclusion of the dance.' Sir Piper nearly fainted. He bolted into the cloak-room at once, and in his agitation lost the ticket which gave him a right to claim a New Inverness cape. In an attempt to find the garment his eyes chanced to turn to a solitary chair near the door. Horror of horrors! there sat his Excellency, the Greek Ambassador, with a determined air, watching him like a lynx. Sir Piper produced bis pocket handkerchief—approached—blew his nose violently, and was about rushing past me to the door—when I called out in a loud tone—"Stopt."

He looked round and saw the muzzle of a solubde buss peeping out from under my over-coat. I had taken my coat and cap into the dancing-room and laid them beside a curtain, o as to avoid the delay and confusion which conctimes takes place in a cloak-room, and was sherefore ready to depart before my friend Piper. Sir Piper came back and sank down beside me with a fascinated expression in his eyes. ne with a fascinated expression in his eyes.

"Sir," said I. "von have insult me and ze whol nazion of ze Greeks!"

'I really did not mean it, your Excellency. I plore your Excellency's pardon. I did not ide. We must shoot each ze oder, ezer ze Sir Piper started at me in a hopeless state of cerror, and presently skipped out of a neighbor-neg window, which happened to be open, with greater agility than I should have expected from a person of his age and appearance.

People have since told me that no one but a very reckless and very young fellow would have behaved as I did on that memorable night. I believe they are right. I skipped out of the window after him. He was caught in his own trap. There was no outlet from the sort of yard into which he had got; and Sir Piper was in the position of a stag at bay. His bearing, however, was not so defiant, and really it is scarcely fair to censure him. I am a formidable looking man. I was also possessed of a very ferocious looking weapon, which at a short

I was also possessed of a very ferocious looking weapon, which at a short range was capable of blowing a large breach in an elderly gentleman's person, or of filling him with a sufficient number of stings to make him feel uncomfortable when retiring for the hight. He proposed to make a written apology. I decided upon tossing for first shot. The blunderbuss was not loaded, but fortune favored me. Sir Piper was to shoot last! He weat down on his kness and clasped his hands. He presented the most absurd appearance. He was half under the shadow of a sort of meat-safe of considerable height, which had a pointed conical roof. The moon shone on his agonized face, flashed on his spectacles. Suddenly an idea came into my head. "Sir Piper," said I, lowering the muzzle of the blunderbuss. 'I will git a-you one chance. If you will be a-my pardon on ze top of zat howze of meat, I sait forgif a-you."

The thing appeared impracticable even for me, but Sir Piper scrambled up in no time, sat on the apex at the top, and in the most piteons way implored forgiveness for insulting his Excellency the Ambassador of the King of the "For goodness sake do come down, my dear

It was a second or two before Sir Piper could understand. He at length scrambled from his borch and dropped to the paved surface of the ard. I thought I perceived symptoms of rising Il temper on the part of Sir Piper, when I over temper on the part of Sir Piper, when I ex lained to him who I really was; upon which I Count Polupholoisholo Thalasses made his escape from the colony next morning; but he has since gained the friendship of Sir Piper Timkins, who, though conscious of the mysterious influence which Mr. Trevyllian has over him, laughs as much as any one over the story of the "Greek Ambassador."

P. S. I have since married the daughter of the Deputy Assistant Quartermaster-General of Transmarina, and, having taken serious placetical views of life, have left off practical gilling.

DRACTICAL TESTS HAVING FULLY DEMON strated the superiority of this machine over a hers for the purpose of sinking Oil Wells, the under igned is now prepared to receive orders for the same. s machinery comprises everything requisite for

AND CAST IRON DRIVING PIPE, (but will be fur tished, if desired, at a reasonable price), and dispenses with the use of the Derrick Rope, Bull Wheel, and cumwind the dee of the Derrick Rope, Bull Wheels, and cum-brous and expensive fixtures now in use, and is so Br ranged, being constructed on wheels, and portable, tha it can be easily removed for the purpose of sinking wells in different localities.

THE DETRITUS is removed from the well by our atent Hydraulic process, and does not require the oval of the drill from the boring. This process not ly removes all the detritus in from 5 to 10 minutes at likewise effectually clears out and opens all the nall oil veins that are so often entirely closed up
